

WEST LICKING COUNTY FINDS

by
Dick Lemaster, Newark, OH

While surface hunting in June, 2009, in a field which didn't look very promising, I found the Adena keyhole pendant shown below. It was lying on top of the ground. I photographed it where it was. A further search of the field near the find revealed an Adena point of translucent Flint Ridge flint and a bladelet of the same material. I later returned to the site and found the well chipped drill only a few feet away from the pendant find.

Figure 1 (Lemaster) Two photos of the Adena keyhole gorget found in Licking County.

Figure 2
(Lemaster)
Group of artifacts
from the same area.